You only get one chance at a first impression. Walking into a health care facility, office, or retail store, what is one of the first things you notice? The floors! Are they clean, clear of debris and scuff marks, or are they dirty and dingy? Floor care is often overlooked but the impact it has on customers and clients is immeasurable.

Generally it is one of the most labor intensive and time consuming jobs in the professional cleaning industry.

Neutralizers

A neutralizer cleaning chemical is anything but neutral. In the cleaning world, a cleaning chemical that is termed a “neutralizer” will most often be acidic, in the pH range of 2. Neutralizers are used to bring alkaline liquids and residues back to a pH of 7 (or neutral), making it simpler to clean up and preparing the surface for the floor finish.

Maintainers

Floor maintainers can considerably improve cleaning standards and also achieve cost savings. A maintainer is a combination of detergent and wax polymer which cleans, enhances slip resistance, removes black marks and scuffs while building gloss on hard floors.

Finishes

Floors act as supporting background for the rest of the room and provide that clean, luxurious look. The look of your flooring can greatly impact the perception that people have of your business. The durability of a floor is also influenced by the amount of wear it will receive. Floor finish creates a hard surface that can withstand wear better than bare flooring.

Floor Care In 4 Steps

Step 1: Floor Preparation

Before proceeding, remove all furniture and roll up all walk-off mats. Sweep the room or vacuum to remove all debris from the floor surface.

Safety is very important during floor maintenance, for both the person doing the cleaning and especially for people walking in the area being cleaned. Slips and falls can happen in a second and can be very dangerous, causing broken bones, head injuries or worse. The proper use of floor signs, as well as following correct cleaning procedures, can reduce the risks of injury. Always wear the appropriate personal protective equipment.

Step 2: Stripping

When choosing a stripper, the performance is the key factor. Keep in mind that if you buy a cheap or poor quality floor stripper, you might not save money in the long run.

The following factors are important to consider:

- Ease of penetration of the film
- Cost in use
- Odour
- Free-rinsing

	Time-Out Plus	Champion	Formula-1	Dynamite
Level of Performance		★★★	★★	★
Dilution	1:20	1:12	1:10	1:4
pH (1% solution)	10.4	10.9	10.9	12.5
Dwell Time	10-15 minutes	15-20 minutes	15-20 minutes	15-20 minutes
Active Ingredient	Solvent	Solvent	Solvent	Solvent/Caustic
Odour	Odourless	Citrus	Lemon-mint	Odourless
Recommended Neutralizer	Film Away	Film Away	Film Away	Neutralizer

Step 3: Sealing

When choosing a sealer, just remember the acronym SAP:

Safety: It must not increase slip potential or emit harmful fumes.

Appearance: The higher the gloss level, the greater the degree of color enrichment.

Performance: Thickness, durability, and maintenance requirements.

	Foundation	Accolade	Gard
Level of performance		★★★	★★

Non-Resilient Floors	Yes	Yes	Yes

Step 4: Floor Finish

When comparing floor finish consider these factors:

- Maintenance: Is spray-buffing or burnishing required? If so, how often?
- Ease of removal
- Performance curve
- Appearance of glossiness

	Orbit	Glacier	Gran-Prix XL

Oxy D.S.T.
Hydrogen Peroxide Based Cleaner

Combines the powerful cleaning and degreasing properties of Dustbane's Dynamic Surfactant Technology with the amazing stain lifting power of oxygen bleach.

Choosing The Right Products Using The pH Scale

Cleaning is an attempt to neutralise the impact of acidic or alkaline ions in a stain or soiling. So if you wish to clean a soil that is acidic, you should use an alkaline cleaning product, and vice-versa.

Running from 0-14, the pH scale helps you to determine whether a substance is acidic or alkaline. A substance with a pH of 7 is neutral; anything lower than 7 is increasingly acidic, with 0 being the most acidic, and anything higher than 7 is increasingly alkaline, with 14 being the most alkaline.

Disinfectants

How To Choose The Right Disinfectant

Not all disinfectants do the same job, knowing the difference between each product is a must for proper use of your chemicals. Here's some things to consider when choosing the right disinfectant.

1: Know Your Environment

Different surfaces breed different bacteria, viruses, and fungi. Identifying the most common risks for your facility can help determine what disinfectant you may need in order to effectively remove these pathogens.

2: Environmental Standards

In this day and age, reducing your ecological footprint isn't as much of a suggestion as much as it is an obligation. While certain cleaning chemicals may generate harsh fumes or contain aggressive ingredients, there are products out there that can help you make better choices for the planet. Products in our ECOLOGO® lineup have undergone rigorous scientific testing, exhaustive auditing, or both, to prove its compliance with stringent, third-party, environmental performance standards.

3: Time Management

Contact time is the amount of time that a disinfectant needs to "rest" on a surface in order for it to destroy the microorganisms that are the hardest to kill. Infact, a disinfectant with certain bacteria and virus claims may not meet all of the claims if the contact time isn't met.

4: Multi-Purpose or Single Purpose

Some disinfectants are simply, just disinfectants. Although having a product that's tailored to one task is important for certain types of cleaning, it could also become a tedious task for facilities that would require extra products to get the job done.

Degreasers

Have you ever wondered how degreasers work? It's all about chemistry! Degreaser is alkaline (base) and grease is acidic. Degreaser neutralizes the pH of the grease, causing it to fall apart (dissociate) and be more easily wiped up. We offer two types of degreasers for both industrial applications and the food industry.

Personal Care

Hand washing is like the “do it yourself” vaccine. Proper hand washing is not only hygienic, but it is the single most effective way to prevent the spread of infections in all settings – from the workplace and home to childcare facilities and hospitals, and will help you stay healthy. You carry millions of microbes on your hands. While most of them are harmless, you do attract some that can cause illnesses, such as colds, flu, and diarrhea. Germs can be spread by simple person to person contact or by touching a contaminated surface or object and then touching your face.

Hand washing can greatly reduce the chance of spreading or getting germs. The mechanical action of scrubbing loosens up the dirt and microbes on our hands and the soap picks them up and binds to them so that the water can wash them away. The use of gloves is not a substitute for hand washing.

Many people would agree that washing your hands on a regular basis is essential to reduce the spread of common illness, especially during cold and flu season. Easily accessible soap is the perfect way to remind people to wash their hands.

Odour Control Options

Odour management can be a tough task. With a multitude of options to manage odours, it can be overwhelming and confusing to pick the appropriate product for the task.

The first thing to do when tackling odours, is to find the source. Once you have found the source, the next step is to clean the surface. If you are unable to remove the majority of the source of the odour, odour control products can be used. Many products are available, but what’s the difference between an air freshener, an odour counteractant or deodorizer? How do you know which one is best and how do they work? Here’s a quick explanation:

Deodorizer/Air Freshener

A product that “deodorizes” will mask odours but doesn’t cover the odour permanently — it simply adds a good odour to a bad odour or can give a room a fresh scent if odours are not an issue.

Odour Counteractant/Eliminator

An air freshener with odour counteracts is the best solution for a facility with offensive odours such as smoke and rotting food that should be removed from the air. They neutralize the malodour by breaking down its molecules in the air.

Enzyme Based

Enzyme based products attack the contamination, creating enzymes that break down odour-causing matter. Ideal for bio-based odour such as urine that comes from naturally occurring bacteria and uric acid crystals. The great benefit of enzyme based products is that they’ll keep working even after the initial application.

Specialty Products

Particular situations require special products to complete the cleaning task. Maintaining a pristine environment isn't subject to how often or thoroughly you clean, but rather the type of products you use. Find an assortment of far-reaching cleaning supplies that go the extra mile to deep clean, restore and prevent mess and imperfections around your business, office or restaurant.

Cost In Use:

An important factor to consider when purchasing a product is the cost in use. Comparing the litre's prices is not a good indication of the final price paid. The formula to obtain the cost in use is as follows:

$$\text{Unit Price} / \text{Unit Size} = \text{Price Per Litre}$$

$$\text{Price Per Litre} / \text{Sum of Parts from Dilution} = \text{Cost in Use (Per Litre)}$$

Dilution	Price	Format
1:80	$27.00	4 L

$$$27.00 / 4 \text{ L} = $6.75$$

$$$6.75 / (1+80) = \mathbf{$0.08 \text{ per litre}}$$

Dilution Chart

Use this chart to determine the chemical to water ratio. The smaller number is the parts of chemical, while the large number is the parts of water.

Helpful Tips:

When diluting chemicals, you might find it helpful to fill your container with the proper amount of water, then adding the concentrated chemical. By adding water to the chemical, you may not only create an excessive amount of foam but you risk splashing the concentrated chemical on yourself. Always remember to label your trigger sprayer bottle with a label that reflects its content.

IMPORTANT:
 Certain maintenance procedures and products may vary according to type, grade, age, and condition of flooring. This chart attempts to give you a general indication of which products will give you the best results. Data subject to change without notice.

Use and wear protective equipment or clothing required by the employer. The use of protective gloves and safety glasses is highly recommended.

Refer to product label and SDS before use. For complete product information, please consult www.dustbane.ca.
